About NDWC

Founded in 2000, the National Dominican Women's Caucus (NDWC) is a 501(c)(3) nonprofit organization dedicated to educating, empowering, and ensuring the equitable participation of Dominican and Latina women in the United States.

NDWC brings together advocates, scholars, professionals, entrepreneurs, and community leaders to advance policies and initiatives that improve the lives of women and families. Through leadership development, civic engagement, research, education, and advocacy, NDWC works to strengthen communities and promote equitable opportunities for all.

About the Summit

The NDWC Latina Leaders Summit is an annual gathering of Latina professionals, students, advocates, entrepreneurs, elected officials, and community leaders.

The summit creates a space for meaningful conversations around:

- Leadership & Civic Engagement
- Health Equity & Reproductive Justice
- Housing Stability & Economic Empowerment
- Education & Workforce Development
- Community Building & Advocacy

Expected attendees include representatives from nonprofit organizations, government agencies, higher education institutions, healthcare organizations, businesses, and community groups from across New York City and beyond.
